Dear Sir

It is a long while since I last wrote you about my picture "Eagle & Indian", which was hung in the Corcoran Gallery - I wrote to friends to have it removed and taken charge of and also to Brulaton & Dyer on the same subject, but had no answer. Meanwhile afflictions in my family put everything away from me for a while - But, having heard lately that the picture is still in the Gallery, I write to ask if it is so, that I may decide upon its future disposition -

Yours respectfully James R. Stuart

 Dear Sir

I beg to inform you that my pictures which were admitted for exhibition to the Corcoran Art Gallery April 5th, have been forwarded to Washington by Express directed to the care of the Corcoran Art Gallery.

Though requested to do so I have refrained from exhibiting them to the public here, as I did not think such a proceeding just to your Gallery.

If the criticisms by a few artist-friends are just, I think you will not be disappointed, and hope that you will be kind enough and have them hung in a favorable position so that my friends many of whom will visit your Gallery for the purpose of seeing them, may see them under the most favorable auspices.

I shall be pleased to hear from you of their safe arrival.

I am very Respectfully Yours

Dear sir

If Mr. Corcoran is willing to take the risk of sending the "Niagara" to me here, I think I shall be able to repaint the stained parts of the picture.

My Studio is perhaps 1000 feet from my house. But there will be no fire in it at this season and any other risk will be very small. Besides I do not think that I shall be obliged to have the picture in the Studio more than one night. My house is practically fireproof.

If he decides to have it come you may send it without delay of course without the frame.

Last Winter I had it all arranged to go to Washington with the intention of doing the work there, but the sudden and fatal illness of a relative interrupted my plans.

Yours truly

The picture is more valuable as a great

Hon. Robert C. Winthrop spoke of the New England Methodist Historical Society, the proceedings at whose sixth annual meeting have been recently published; and he then alluded to a portrait of Henry Laurens of South Carolina, said to have been painted by Copley while Laurens was confined in the Tower of London in 1781, he having been captured while on his way to Holland as our minister plenipotentiary. This picture was for sale in Washington when Mr. Winthrop saw it, and he was impressed anew with the conviction that a national portrait gallery should be established, where the history of our country should be illustrated by the likenesses of those who have been eminent in civil or military service, or in scientific or literary labors from the earliest period.

Dear Sir,

At a meeting of our Historical Society, a few days ago, I alluded to the portrait of Laurens which I had seen at the Corcoran Gallery while in Washington. Will you do me the favor to send me a copy of <sup>all</sup> the Inscriptions on the portrait, including the extract from the letter?

We have no idea of entering into any Competition for the portrait. I inclose the Newspaper Report of my allusion to it. I desire the inscriptions and

The pictures should

My dear Sir

I was not disappointed about the Boston Boy. indeed I am glad because I have now made an arrangement with Max Jacoby of John & New York for the wholesaling the print. Before deciding whether to comply with Mr Corcoran's order for 50 more prints may I enquire cannot you supply them out of the 100 on hand?

It is no commercial aliyed on me to supply Mr Corcoran with 50 prints at that price - and might be cause of friction with Jacoby if I filled the order. I must however please Mr Corcoran at all risks if he really needs them because I so highly respect him and his generous deeds

I have no objection to the Newspaper man naming the value of the picture at $6000 - it cost poor Mr Rodgers more than that - all told - thanks for your kind interest I am yours very truly
